

Academic Senate Faculty Positions Available
UCDC (UC Washington Center, Washington, DC)

The University of California's Washington Center in Washington DC seeks to fill one and possibly two openings for UC Academic Senate Faculty to teach in its consolidated UCDC undergraduate programs for the AY 2012-13. The UCDC program provides opportunities for undergraduates from nine UC campuses to study and participate in public service, science policy and arts internships in Washington DC for a quarter or semester. The usual AY teaching load is three quarter and one semester seminars of 25 students or less. There are two types of seminars: general social science research seminars and themed seminars that more closely link coursework and writing assignments in a specific topic area to the students' internships. Successful candidates may apply for one or more quarters or semesters or to be in residence for a full academic year with the possibility of reappointment. Their home departments will be compensated by funds to cover a full-time lecturer. Anyone interested in the Academic Senate Faculty positions at UCDC for AY 2012-13 should email a letter of application, CV and the names of two references to the Executive Director of the UC Washington Center, Bruce Cain, at bruce@cain.berkeley.edu, no later than December 16, 2011.
